

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A laboratory wear and drag force testing system in a central controller operably connected to a plurality of testing terminals. The testing terminals allow for environmental isolation of the drive mechanisms to allow a range of testing temperatures. Both vertical and horizontal loads are measured and recorded such that testing can be suspended or terminated in response to predetermined thresholds.